National Baseball Hall of Fame
Cooperstown, NY
Tuesday, 7/26/22

<https://baseballhall.org/>

The National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, surely the most well-known sports shrine in the world, continues to thrive in the town where baseball's pulse beats the strongest. The village is pure Americana, a one-stoplight town nestled between the Adirondacks and the Catskills in Central New York. It drew its name from the family of James Fenimore Cooper – whose father, William, founded the village – whose works of literature have become American standards.

By the last half of the 19th Century, baseball had become the National Pastime. The United States was a little more than 100 years old, and baseball had involved with the country.

The HOF collections contain more than 40,000 3-dimensional artifacts such as bats, balls, gloves and uniforms donated by players and fans who want to see history preserved. It also contains more than 250,000 photographs and images. The Museum curators use the artifacts, whose numbers grow by about 400 per year, to tell the story of the National Pastime.

Spend some time strolling down Main Street and perusing all the small shops, including the Cooperstown Bat Company where you can purchase a customized bat made just for you or someone special.

The National September 11th Memorial is a tribute of remembrance and honor to the 2,977 people killed in the terror attacks of 9/11/01 at the WTC site, near Shanksville, PA. and at the Pentagon, as well as the 6 people killed in the WTC bombing on 2/26/93.

The Memorial's twin reflecting pools are each nearly an acre in size and feature the largest manmade waterfalls in North America. The pools sit within the footprints where the Twin Towers once stood. The name of every person who died in the 2001 and 1993 attacks are inscribed into bronze panels edging the Memorial pools, a powerful reminder of the largest loss of life resulting from a foreign attack on American soil and the greatest single loss of rescue personnel in American history.
